Daniel H. Burnham, of Chicago, president of the institute, called the convention to order and delivered the annual address. He spoke of the beneficial influence exerted on the profession and on professional work by the institute, and deprecated the practice of unlimited competition in architectural designs. He referred to the bill now pending before Congress for the appointment of a commission of five men, three of them architects, for the examination of designs for Government buildings, and hoped, if it passed, architects would not refuse to serve on such a committee.

Henry Van Brunt read an interesting report from the Committee on Education, and R. M. Upjohn followed with a report from the Committee on Conservation of Public Buildings. The afternoon session was taken up with a discussion on the relation of chapters to the institute, and after a long debate the amountments to the by-laws recommended by the committee were adopted with slight amendments.

At the evening session Russell Sturgis and darkened, and a most becoming and agreeable light

It being apparently not only the wish but the evident determination of the club to have some expression of Mr. Mansfield's appreciation and good will, he was prevailed upon to make a speech. As he stepped forward he was instantly speech. The step is the club to have a standard of the meeting of the board this afternoon.

I don't know what the object of your club is; in fact, I am not sure that you have any object, but I hope you'll succeed in it, and I am sure you will." This pleasing statement was greeted with applause, and then the hero of the day complimented the club upon its culmary department, and gave a dissertation on cooks in general, and his own in particular, who he declared, he should have to "put out of the way" or meet with a similar mishap himself. In closing he gave his blessing, "hoping it would do a great deal of good," and announced his wish to be of service to the club at any time or in any possible way. The hostesses, Miss Sydney Armstrong and Miss Maud Banks, presided most delightfully, and offered a dainty repast and an excellent programme, among the numbers being a recitation by Miss Anna Warren Story, which received a hearty recall, and a plane solo by Miss Donnelly. REED'S COOPER UNION SPEECH.

BUSINESS UNCERTAINTY NOT WANTED.

From The New-York Recorder. Mr. Reed made his strongest point at the great Cooper Union meeting Saturday evening when he said that "Democracy promises war on business certainty, while the Republicans must give you rest." New-York must, and will, forbid another period of business uncertainty. We must have business peace. Make Democracy's defeat in this State a Waterloo, and we shall get it.

AN OBJECT-LESSON FOR THE ENEMY. From The Mall and Express.

It was a characteristic Republican meeting, and afforded an object-lesson to the many Democrats who were present. In striking contrast with Democratic gatherings this year, the keynote of the meeting was that of hope and cheer.

"ROASTING" THE DEMOCRATS.

From The Springfield Republican. Ex-Speaker Reed's speech at New-York Saturday night was a first-class "roasting" for the Demo-crats. He laughed at them, scoffed at them, was sareastic and witty at their expense, and made all the party capital possible out of the hard times and the bungling of the majority in Consress.

CONTRASTED POLICIES.

From The Newark Advertiser. There is a deep significance in one part of Thomas B. Keed's magnificent Cooper Union address, in which he contrasts the policies of the Democratic And Republican party. We certainly should not do anything to make the tariff worse, for that is contrary to our principles."

TIME TO STRIKE HIGHER.

From The New-York Herald.

From The New-York Heraid.

The Lexow Committee cannot now take up too soon its work of probing at the top. This is its most important field of investigation, and the work in it should be completed in ample season to make an adequate report to the Legislature. From that body is expected legislation to reform the evil, and when it meets there should be no drawback or cause for delay, Moreover, it is important that the entire investigation be completed without unnecessary prolongation. The police force is now in an anomalous and demoralized condition. To say nothing of the fact that the positions of the dismissed captains are filled only by temporary assignments, there are numerous officers in active service who stand charged with felonies. It seems that in these cases no action is to be taken by either the Police Commissioners or the Grand Jury pending the Lexow investigation. This renders it all the more desirable that the investigation be not protracted longer than is necessary to attain the vital ends in view, and that the important work of investigating the administration of the Senator Lexew, the chairman of the committee, was not able to leave his home in Nyack yesterday, and at his office in Liberty-st, it was said that he was suffering from a severe cold, but expected to be able to be present at the sitting of the committee to-day. Apparently the other members of the committee have concluded to give more time to the investigation than they had expected to be able to give before the election, for the committee might sit four days this week and also several days of next week.

When the case was called Mr. Moss, of Howe & Hummel's office, appeared for Mr. Hammerstein and askel that office, appeared for Mr. Hammerstein and asked that the case go over until next Friday, as Mr. Hummel was engaged in another case and could not be present. Mr. Fromme appeared in his own behalf and objected to any postponement. He said that if the case was tried yesterday he would agree not to begin a civil suit for damages. Mr. Moss refused to consent to this. Justice Koth, who presided, said that, as the defendant was entitled to one adjournment, it would have to be granted.

HILL'S PRESIDENTIAL BOOM

ON THE SKIRMISH LINE OF '96.

AND THE WHOLE COUNTRY LOOKING ON. Fellow-Democrats, let us not underestimate the dangers which confront us. We shall encounter the cohorts of corruption in this campaign, led by anidacious and unscrappious leaders, who are fighting, not only for the control of New-York, but for the control of the control of New-York, but for the control of the country. We are on the skirmish line of the great National battle of 18%, and the loss of New-York may lose our party the Presidency. The whole country is breathlessly and hopefully watching our contest, and we must do our full duty.—(Senator Hill's convention speech.

WITH THE GORMAN BILL REPUDIATED. The Tariff bill as it passed the S nate has been discredited by the Democracy of the country. Semators must be blind to the signs of the times if they cannot see that it does not have the approval of the Democratic masses.—(Senator Hall, on July 29.

DEMOCRACY A PARTY OF ISMS.

DEMOCRACY A PARTY OF ISMS.

If a Democratic Congress is to be permitted to repudiate well-established Democratic principles, and to connecte new ones without the sanction of a National Convention, and to compet their support as a test of party featily, we may next expect to hear of the adoption in a tariff or appropriation bill of Henry George's sinch-tax theory, or a provision abolishing all custom-nouses and resorting to direct Federal taxation instead of a tariff for revenue, or providing for the assumption of Government control and usuagement of all the telegraphs, railronds and hanks of the country, or the adoption of any other wild and visionary scheme of Socialism. Paternalism or Populism which the majority may see fit to sanction I cannot follow such leadership, which shifts and turns and temporizes on every public question, which conpromises every well-established Democratic principle for which the party contended when out of power, which stands ready to adopt every passing "issue" of the hour, which surrenders principle for expediency, and parsues no consistent course from one year to another. If political success of my party it only to be purchased by such methods and such sacrifices, I prefer deteat and the preservation of my self-respect.—Genator Hill on June 2.

AND RUIN CONFRONTING IT.

AND RUIN CONFRONTING IT.

A tax the imposition of which will drive New-york, New-Jersey and Connecticut into the Repub-lican column, there to remain permanently; a tax the individual feature of which has not been rec-ommended by any Democratic President or Secre-iary of the Treasury or Commissioner of Internal Revenue; but a tax suggested, advocated and now persistently pushed by a majority which is tem-porarily 'in the saddle' in this Congress, and is driving the Democratic party with reckless and headleng speed into the abyse of political ruin. The most disastrous defeat ever experienced by the Democratic party in Oregon was the result of the effort to substitute new-familed Populistic principles for the good old principles of true De-mocracy. Here and now I venture the prediction that the same result will follow the same effort everywhere.—(Scnator Hill, on June 21.

known. Nothing short of this fixed determination would. I think, keep any civilized person in so uncivilized a place.

The hotels are abominable the fool simple, the service indescribably had. There is no casino, or club, or any place of meeting whatsoever, and this is all as Father Kreipp would have it. My room is a small and melancholy cell, but it is flooded with sunlight, the greatest of all luxuries. 'If you had a pleasant room, with easy chairs, you would stay indoors,' says Kneipp, and at Woerishofen rooms are only places to sleep and dress in. The only salon is the bare, grim dimag-room, with a window leading into the kitchen, here when the guests have dined, the waiters have their dinner, drink their heer, smoke their pipes. The result is just what Kneipp wisher people live out of doors in the belany pine woods which surround the villace on every side. The coffee and ten are so had that nobody drinks them, consequently we all take a great deal of the delicious milk. The butter is in for a king's table, and the honey is of the sort the queen eats with her bread in the parior. Ine bread is excellent, and it is possible to get good beefsteak, room chicken and grapes, which almost consele use for the figs of Italy, which we left in the helpsh of their second and best season. With this limited bill of fare one must be content. 'It is more than poor become can afford,' says Kneipp, "and you rich people have eaten too much all your lives.' Everybody is rich at Woertshofen who does not earn his living by manual labor. We are in the best hotel (which is the worst I have ever seen), and consequently the company here is rate, at in the best hotel (which is the worst I have ever seen), and consequently the company here is rate, at in the people may of the people have titles, but it sometimes happens that one hears nothing about their rank till they leave.

They have never learned the exact circumstances of his adventures and return to the hotel. He is supposed, however, to have been assulted and robbed by highwaymen. The municipal authorities, as well as the boy's father, offered rewards for free apprehension of the guilty persons, as yet with no results. The boy himself was not at any time able to give a connected account of the assault.

He went to Canada in 1864, stayed there until 1896, and then removed to the small village of Passaic, where he opened an office, and was Village Surveyor for a number of years. Passaic grew rapidly in the early seventies, and in 1873 was in-orporated as a city. Obviously the proper man for City Surveyor was Mr. Strange, but he was still a British subject, and declined to the was still a British subject, and declined to proper man for City Surveyor was Mr. Strange, but he was still a British subject, and declined to transfer his allegiance. Dr. Richard A. Terhune accepted the office, and Mr. Strange did the work, until finally he became naturalized, and had the place in name as well as in fact. In 1889 he was succeeded by Colin R. Wise. It is considered unfortunate that Mr. Strange did not put in permanent form his large fund of information about the surveys of Bergen and Passaic counties, which, by the influx of suburban residents, have radically changed in character in the last twenty years. This knowledge dies with Mr. Strange. He leaves a family.

WILLIAM C. WEMYSS.

William C. Wemyss the doorkeeper of the Star Theatre, died yesterday at the New-York Hospital. He had been seriously sick all through the summer, but when the theatrical season opened a few weeks ago he thought himself well enough to resume work, and did so. He insisted on stayresume work, and did so. He insisted on staying at his post till the theatre closed on Saturday night, and it was not till Sunday night that he was taken to the hospital. Mr. Wemyss was affy-three years old. His first theatrical experience was as pressurer at Niblo's Garden. He left this place to take that of doorkeeper at the Globe Theatre, in Broadway, where Harrigan & Hart's afferward stood. Afterward he was employed in the same capacity by "Josh" Hart, and later by Augustin Daly, at his theatre in Twenty-fourth-st, and also at the one at Broadway and Twenty-eighth-st. He held the same post at the Casino for some years and went from there to the Star, where he had been for about a year and a half. He was also in business several years ago as a publisher of plays. He was not married.
